Saginaw Habitat for Humanity Changes Website

Saginaw Habitat for Humanity has changed its web and E-mail addresses. As of April 3, the website can be found at www.saginawhfh.org. For E-mail, go to the new website and click on "Contact Us."

On March 17, the old address was hacked and a foreign entity took control, presumably to "sell" the domain name back to Saginaw Habitat for Humanity. E-mail to the affiliate during this time was not delivered. Saginaw Habitat for Humanity enlisted legal counsel and the FBI to investigate this matter. Added to the affiliate's expenses are the cost of legal counsel and website transition, which includes new brochures, signs, letterhead, and business cards. Any visitors to the original site will find Saginaw Habitat for Humanity's name and logo are still displayed at the top of the page, while the text was replaced by a link to an adult website. Donations through a no-fee online link to Habitat for Humanity International have remained secure.

The interim website will be in place until further notice. Saginaw Habitat for Humanity apologizes for any inconvenience this may have caused.

Habitat for Humanity International (HFHI) is a non-profit, ecumenical Christian housing ministry dedicated to eliminating poverty housing and homelessness. HFHI has built over 125,000 houses in its 26-year history. Saginaw Habitat for Humanity has built or renovated 90 houses since its founding in 1987. Donations are tax-deductible.
